Luke Trimble Biography

Luke Trimble is an award-winning American classical guitarist. Under the direction of renowned composer and guitarist Bryan Johanson, Luke graduated cum laude with a Bachelor of Music from Portland State University. He has performed in master classes with many of the world's finest guitarists, including Michael Partington, Thibault Cauvin, and Ana Vidovic. He was awarded First Prize, alongside fellow guitarists Mario Diaz and Jesse McCann, for their trio's performance at the 2007 University of Texas Brownsville Ensemble Guitar Competition. Luke was also a semifinalist in the 2011 Portland International Solo Guitar Competition.

An advocate of new music, he continues to promote the performance and commission of solo and chamber works for guitar by West Coast composers, i.e., Washington, Oregon & California. This is highlighted by the frequent performance of works by Bryan Johanson, Lou Harrison, Terry Riley and Ralph Towner, among others.

A former resident of Honolulu, Hawaii, Luke has been featured on Hawaii Public Radio. He has performed with members of the Honolulu Symphony, the Air Force Band of the Pacific, the UH Contemporary Music Ensemble, and numerous chamber players.

In 2012, Luke released an album of new music for guitar and cello, featuring cellist Matthew Keating, entitled Lines, Color & Form: Music of Bryan Johanson.

Luke is also an active arranger and teacher. With a strong background in Music Education he teaches students of all ages in both private and classroom settings. He has guest lectured at the University of Hawaii at Mānoa. From 2009 to 2011, he served as Director of Education at The Kailua Music School.

Luke lives with his wife Willa and their son Graham in Shanghai.
